

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
SOUTHERN DISTRICT OF NEW YORK

ARTIST PUBLISHING GROUP, LLC, et al.,

Plaintiffs,

v.

ORLANDO MAGIC, Ltd. d/b/a ORLANDO MAGIC,

Defendant.

Case No.: 24-cv-5461(JSR)

DECLARATION OF CHRISTOPHER WOODS IN SUPPORT OF PLAINTIFF'S
MOTION FOR SUMMARY JUDGMENT

Pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1746, I, CHRISTOPHER WOODS, declare and state as follows:

1. I am the Chief Operating Officer for TuneSat, LLC ("TuneSat"). I submit this declaration in support of Plaintiffs' Motion for Summary Judgment. I have personal knowledge of all the facts stated below, except for those matters stated on information and belief, and as to those matters, I believe them to be true. I have been an officer at TuneSat for more than 15 years. I have extensive knowledge about TuneSat's systems and operations, as well as the types of data TuneSat collects.

2. TuneSat is an independent audio monitoring service. Using proprietary audio recognition technology, TuneSat locates "detections" or "uses" of its clients' music, together with related technical data, across an array of internet and broadcast-based content.

3. In or around May 8, 2020, Kobalt Music Publishing America, Inc. engaged TuneSat to detect uses of their music and the music they administrate for other sub-publishers.

4. Broadly speaking, TuneSat's technology works by cataloging and archiving audio-visual content across internet sources, using an automated system to download the content. TuneSat then uses its proprietary "acoustic fingerprint" technology to identify uses of a client's music in audio-visual content it has archived. Acoustic fingerprinting works by analyzing waveforms and extracting the unique characteristics of an audio file. The resulting output—an acoustic fingerprint—is a condensed representation of an audio signal that captures its signature and allows it to be differentiated from other sounds.

5. The audio files TuneSat uses to create acoustic fingerprints for each of its clients' works come either directly from the client or from a vendor.

6. A match confirmed by the technology is referred to as a "detection." At times, a TuneSat employee will record a "use"—the equivalent of a "detection" that is found through the technology. This happens when the technology is unable to analyze the audio content, generally because the speed of the recording has been altered or the audio is part of a mash-up of multiple works. The manual review is considerably more time consuming than the automated detection process.

7. Both the acoustic fingerprint and the archived video are necessary for TuneSat to identify detections. If it does not have an archived video, it cannot identify a detection regardless of whether it has an acoustic fingerprint of the song. Likewise, without an acoustic fingerprint, it will not be able to identify a detection in any of the archived videos.

8. TuneSat does quality control on its detections and uses by validating that the detected sound recording is the same song that matches the acoustic fingerprint on which the detection is based. Usually, it also confirms the client's ownership interests in the detected sound recording or composition, though this confirmation is sometimes performed by a law firm.

9. The information below was kept by TuneSat in the ordinary course of its business identifying detections and uses under its contract with Kobalt Music Publishing America, Inc.
